IT WILL ALWAYS BE THE SAME • PART 5 OF 6

Heaven grew silent.

The roar of the wind receding as Beatrice pushed above the clouds.

The anxiety she hid during the preparations-- was gone now.

She had made up her mind.

Made the people a promise.

Her rebellion had spread fast these past weeks.

A fire tearing through the dried kindling of the desperate soul of Harlos.

The new gods had failed them.

Of this, no doubt remained.

They had long since given up hope in prayer.

But found it in rebellion.

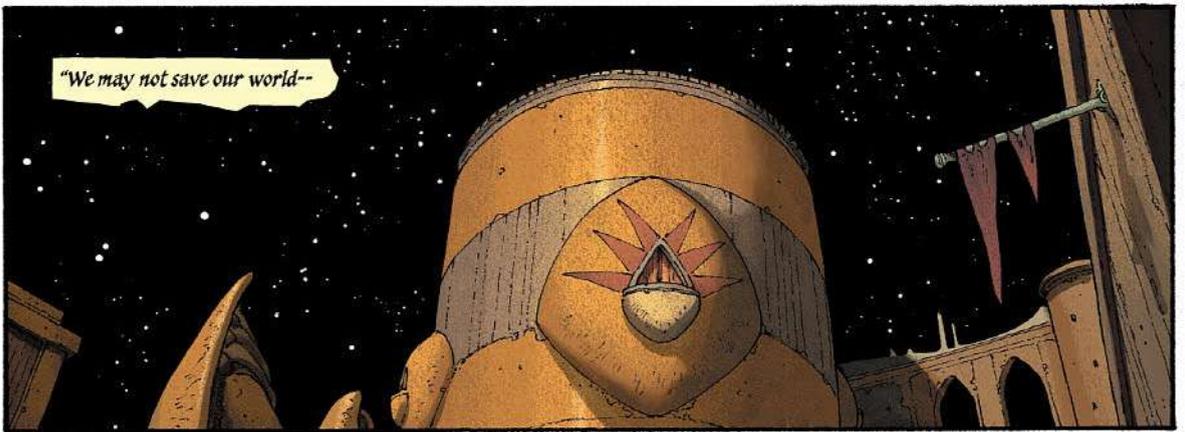

Soluna's temples fell swiftly.

A target for their rage.

*Under a mantra their leader
Beatrice repeated before every battle...*

"We may not save our world--"

"But we will not die alone."

MY LORD,
HARLOS
DETERIORATES
RAPIDLY...
